"THE BREEDER'S DREAM"

By C. M. Collier-Young

Ever charming, ever new,
When can colors change the view?
Gold and silver tipped with gray,
Dainty pink in grand array.

Shades uncommon, blendings new,
Silver frosted, glistening blue,
All the shadings of the dawn,
The somber red of coming storm.

Blending of the rainbow's gleam,
Moulded in an artist's dream,
Bright colors of the noonday sun,
Glowing, changing, when 'tis done.

The dusky hues of midnight sky,
When fleecy clouds are skimming by,
Elusive colors here are seen,
The beauties of a breeder's dream.
